Webinar Series 2017

What: Graduate Programs in the Population Sciences Information Session

When: November 3 at 12pm EDT
November 14 at 2pm EST

Registration:
http://pips.ssdan.net/upcoming-webinars

Panelists for November 3:
- Prof. Matthew Hall, Cornell University - Cornell Population Center
- Prof. Jenna Nobles, University of Wisconsin-Madison - Center for Demography and Ecology
- Prof. Paula Fomby, University of Michigan - Population Studies Center
- Prof. Wendy Manning, Bowling Green State University - Center for Family and Demography Research

Panelists for November 14:
- Prof. Jennie Brand, University of California at Los Angeles - California Center for Population Research
- Prof. Stephen Matthews, Pennsylvania State University - Graduate Program in Demography
- Prof. Corey Sparks, University of Texas at San Antonio - Department of Demography

The Program in the Population Sciences, or PIPS (http://pips.ssdan.net) website is a resource for college seniors and others to learn about graduate programs in population sciences. Sometimes linked with departments of sociology, economics, geography, statistics and public health, these programs provide training for later research, policy and academic careers in the field of population studies.

PIPS is sponsored by the Social Science Data Analysis Network, or SSDAN (http://ssdan.net) at the University of Michigan Population Studies Center and Institute for Social Research. It receives funding from an R25 Population Education Grant from NICHD under grant number R25HD078226.